Special Lunch with David McCorkill

RE-SETTING THE LEADERSHIP COMPASS... THE 5 THINGS LEADERS OFTEN GET WRONG

Integrating business, life & faith

As an Executive Leadership Coach, David McCorkill has worked closely with leaders and has observed several common themes where leaders tend to get it wrong. He will share his observations and insights regarding some of these areas and how we can course-correct our mindset and actions to become more effective leaders.

David brings more than 35 years of proven consulting experience assisting organizations and individuals in executive coaching, career management, career transition/outplacement, leadership development, employee engagement, and recruitment. He has also held progressive leadership roles with Fortune 500 companies and has a solid insight into many of the challenges now facing organizations. His practical “common sense” approach to training and coaching has been described as “engaging, informal, insightful and caring”.

David has worked and lived in six cities from the west to east coast and understands the many regional differences that organizations often need to address. He and his wife Barb have two grown sons and have recently become proud grandparents. They currently reside in western Canada.
